This is happening now

On March 31, our collective agreement expired, but we are not in conflict! You can still go to work as usual. We, the HRF, and Visita are currently negotiating a new agreement, though there are still difficult issues to resolve.

Negotiators met both on Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, but has not yet been able to agree on a new collective agreement. We disagree on wages and how it should be calculated. Then there is also the issue of slicing working hours that is still not resolved.

What happens now?

During this time, until we have a new agreement or until one of the parties (HRF or Vista) terminates the agreement, terms of the old agreement and its conditions is still applicable, and we are continuing to work as usual. This means that you as a member of HRF continues to work according to your schedule with your current salary.
